

Gentle Front-Support Baby Carrier

In the Media: Celebrity Baby Blog Review - Feb. 2008

CELEBRITY BABY BLOG

Products, fashions and design for hip parents & parents-to-be.

Six carriers later... and we finally found one: The Belle Baby Carrier
By Doryn

I have tried 6, yes, I said 6 baby carriers (ask Danielle, she'll vouch for me). My daughter fought every single one. Personally, I felt that most of them were such a pain to put on and I have a bad back so all of them really bothered me after a few minutes. I kind of gave up and just felt like it wasn't worth the hassle. Last week I received an email from Belle Baby Carriers asking me to try their carrier. I thought in my head "I probably shouldn't take the sample because there is no way Tatum will like this one," but I took them up on their offer anyway. I got it in the mail yesterday and as soon as she was up from her nap, I strapped her in facing out and she was so happy and actually giggling.

Co-designers Mark and Seth have been designing rock climbing equipment for several years and knew many parents out in Colorado that enjoyed hiking with their baby's in tow. When they had their own kids they decided to design a carrier that was more simple to use and takes the pressure off your back. What do I love about this one? First of all, it is so light and there's no bulk so you can just roll it up and stick it in your diaper bag. It is by far the ONLY carrier that I have used that doesn't bother my back. It's incredibly safe and can be used with baby facing inward or outward. It comes in 10 very cool fabrics that you won't feel embarrassed about wearing (why is it when we have a child we have to all of a sudden wear what ever color and infantile design pertains to the sex of the baby?). The fabrics are made of synthetic microsudes that are light and breathable and include two organic fabrics.

You have probably seen Julia Roberts in all the Celeb magazines wearing her Belle. I know she spends a lot of time with her kids outdoors and hiking, so that says a lot. I am so grateful to Belle Baby Carriers for finally coming out with a practical and easy baby that my little girl LOVES. For more information go to www.Bellebabycarriers.com.

